Letter to the Editor:

Dillsburg Residents! Budget Deficit-Cuts Involving Your Security!

I just read in the Patriot News Tuesday December 4 1990 paper that Dillsburg Borough faces a budget deficit of $35,000. The article mentioned that they are "looking at the police budget." My question is have they looked anywhere else? What is it that municipalities always want to cut the police budget. I would assume because it is probably the biggest piece of the budget. But when you stop and think about it, that is the way it should be. What other large expense does a municipality have?

I hope that in cutting the police budget they don't plan to cut down on our existing 24 hour, 7 day a week coverage in any way such as contracting another department. I have lived in the Borough for 12 years now and knowing we have the coverage we do makes me feel a lot better. How about you?

Don't you think you should give this some thought and call one of the members of the council or attend the meeting on 12/11/90 or 12/18/90. We elected these people to represent us and I would hope that they wouldn't consider something like this without informing us but for those of you who have lived here for awhile, you know this was considered before.

I also read in the Banner last week under the Franklin Township News that Dillsburg Borough presented a contract proposal for police service to them with a "significant" increase over the prior year proposal. It's all rumor at this point but I understand the increase to the Franklin Township proposal was more than the increase to the 1991 overall police budget of $20,300 and was 2/3 that of the deficit Dillsburg now faces.

I believe last years contract with Franklin Township was somewhere in the neighborhood of $45,000. I understand the increase is quite "significant" in comparison to that amount but just think if we had just the $45,000, we wouldn't have a deficit. I know there would be some additional expenses but that would be in gasoline and wear and tear on the police vehicle. Face it-If you are going to provide Dillsburg with 24 hour protection you have to have someone out there anyway and only 2 hours of each 8 hour shift is spent in the Township because the contract only calls for 6 hours a day.

By the way, I believe the new contract for police in Dillsburg calls for a slight salary increase to $19,500. Quite a salary for someone who has the potential of not seeing the end of their shift! They do hire from time to time so if you would like to work for that salary make sure you put in an application. The Borough has recently considered hiring a Sewer Plant Operator for $23,000. That's $3,500 more than a police officer earns and approximately $1,000 less than the police chief earns per year. Seems to me that our priorities are a little mixed up!

Please let your feelings be known! Your support means a lot!!

Ideas for Holiday Health Stories

Each year during the "happy holidays" hundreds and thousands of Americans are injured or die from accidents that could be prevented. Health professionals at Penn State's University Hospital of The Milton S. Hershey Medical Center are available to talk about their particular area of accident prevention.

Childproofing Your Home for the 'holidays

Holiday decorating can be a time of excitement for children. But we all looks festive in the house may be inviting the hands of small children, according to Dr. Mark Widome, associate professor of pediatrics and chairman of the Committee on Injury and Poison Prevention of the American Academy of Pediatrics. In fact, last year 2,523 children were hurt by Christmas tree decorations, and 122,500 toy-related injuries to children were reported. Extension cords, faulty lights, candles, small and breakable ornaments and decorations, and presents with small parts are all potential health hazards to children. "If something a small enough to fit entirely in children's mouths, then it's too small to be within their reach," Dr. Widome says.

Poison Prevention Helps Make Happy Holidays

Poison emergencies occur more frequently over the holidays. Many holiday products, including plants, decorations and alcohol, are harmful to children. The risk of poison increases with hectic family schedules. Parents may have less time and attention for supervising their children. Sandra J. O'Donnell, R.N. coordinator of the Capital Area Poison Center, urges parents and all adults to take extra precautions to ensure their families have a happy and safe holiday season.

Prevent Poisoning From Winter Wood Fires

Prolonged burning of a wood commonly used for outdoor decks and patios may cause arsenic poisoning and a host of irreversible physical problems. Accordingly to toxicologist Dr. J. Ward Donovan, when pressure-treated wood is burned in woodstoves and fireplaces, arsenic may be released through woodpile leaks and faulty flues, leading to arsenic poisoning. With oil prices rising this winter many people will increase their use of woodstoves and fireplaces, raising the possibility that they will use wood treated with arsenic to heat their homes.

The Silent Danger of Winter Heating

Carbon monoxide poisoning increases during the winter heating season. An incorrectly vented fireplace, coal stove or furnace may release the poisonous gas into the home. Unseen and unsmelled, carbon monoxide attacks the oxygen we need to say alive and is the number one poison killer in America. Toxicologist Dr. J. Ward Donovan warns those with concerns about their heating systems to have them inspected.

Cold-Weather Health and Safety Precautions

Overexposure to cold can cause frostbite, an injury to the skin and the tissues that lie beneath it. Children are more prone to frostbite than adults, and parents need to be aware of a child's path of exposure, not just the temperature, according to Dr. Mark Widome, associate professor of pediatrics and chairman of the Committee on Injury and Poison Prevention of the American Academy of Pediatrics.

Parents should protect children against frostbite and windburn by dressing them appropriately (in layers, including wool, and with hats and mittens).

Before gearing up for outdoor sports and activities, it is important to properly outfit children and explain simple safety rules--especially for ice skating, ice hockey, skiing and sledding. Children should never be allowed to sled in or near traffic and should not be permitted to drive snowmobiles, Dr. Widome says.

Snowblowing--A "Hands Off" Experience.

Snow blowers are responsible for serious hand injuries every winter in central Pennsylvania. Many snowblower operators use their hands to remove snow from the engine immediately after turning off the machine. Dr. Ernest Munders, chief of plastic surgery, warns that blades can spin after engines are turned off and urges operators to use a shovel handle or stick, rather than hands, to clean off snow

Purple Haze

by Chris Flohr

The short four-day week after Thanksgiving was a lull for the students at NHS. Everyone was in a daze for the better part of last week.

One interlude to last week was "Meet the Team Night" on Wednesday. All of the basketball teams showed up along with a healthy turnout of fans. Much thanks to Don Eshleman, the official who appeared that night, and explained new rules this season to help all of the fans. All in all it was a successful venture for the basketball program.

Hopefully, all of the boners weren't in that daze last week. Many NHS students took a day or two off to hunt. Some came back happy; others somewhat frustrated. To those disgruntled and frustrated hunters, good luck next time.

At about this time every year, canned food drives and toy donations are prevalent around the area. NHS is having a canned food drive of its own. Any canned items should be taken to the cafeteria stage during the entire month of December. I encourage all students to support this worthy cause. Anyway, do you really need that extra can or two of spaghetti-o's?

It's Christmas tree time again. The tree farms are open now. Everyone is getting in their sauce, dragging out their decorations, and setting up those electric trains. I would advise anyone getting a real tree to get one to cut it down early. The tree chase is beginning earlier than ever. Just make sure that you decorate your tree before the weekend, because the winter sports season begins this weekend.

Good luck to all the sports teams this week. The girls' hoops team has a home tournament, the guys' hoops team has a Friday night home game and a Saturday night away game against Bermudian and Trinity, respectively. The wrestlers open with a tri-meet at East Penn with Milton Hershey.

Northern Guard 1990 ends successful competitive season

The guard of Northern High School Band has just completed a very successful competitive marching season. The guard, under the direction of Daryl Judy, participated in three tournaments of bands competitions and was awarded "Best Guard" in Group III at each of the events. At the Chapter VI championships, held at Carlisle Stadium on November 3, Northern's Guard earned the high band from award in Group III, competing with nine other bands in their division.

The band and guard's performance at Chapter Championships was of such merit that it place as a finalist in the Atlantic Coast Championships, held November 11, in Scranton, Pa. These championships are composed of the top twenty-five bands in the Atlantic Coast Region, including groups from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Ohio, New York, Maryland, Virginia, Delaware, West Virginia and North Carolina. The guard was rated in the top twenty at this prestigious competition. Congratulations to the girls and their instructor for their outstanding accomplishments this year.

NHS Introduces Parents to College Admission Testing and Financial Aid

On Thursday, December 13, at 7:00 p.m. in the Northern High School cafeteria, a presentation will introduce the junior class and their parents to the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT) and to financial aid programs for a college education.

First, Mr. Gorden Bateman, Director of Financial Aid at Elizabethtown College, will offer an overview of financial aid available to college students. Then Ms. Sanderson, Northern's Eleventh Grade Counselor, will discuss the PSAT and the scoring system. Many Northern juniors took the PSAT in October, scores will be distributed and interpreted at this meeting. The PSAT prepare students for taking the SAT, a nationally used standardized test for admission to college. Any junior and/or junior parents interested in learning about financial aid for a college education are invited to Mr. Bateman's presentation. Ms. Sanderson's presentation is for those who took the PSAT and for their parents. For further information contact the High School Guidance office at 432-8691 ext. 251
